RED CROSS WILL HOLD A TAG DAY

For Comforts For Men in Trenches Will be on Aug. 18th. Public Meeting Called For Satuardy Next

A special meeting of the Red Cross executive was held last Tuesday afternoon to consider an appeal from headquarters to hold a special tag day the proceeds from which to go to providing comforts for the men in the trenches. The letter pointed out that owing to the rapidly growing number of men in the trenches the demand for these comforts was now greater than ever, and unless a special effort were made to keep up with this growing demand those at home would not be doing their duty to the boys at the front.

It was therefore decided that a tag day be held here for that purpose on Saturday, August the 18th. Tags will be secured for the ocasion. This will mean that a number of girls, young ladies and possibly boys, will be required to do the tagging on that day, and the executive have asked us to issue a call for recruits for this purpose. The committee pointed to look after this tag day is Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. R. R. Stoner, C. W. Reade and E. L. Stone. Those who are willing to assist in this work might leave their names with any of the above committee. Since the holidays are now on there should be a number of school girls volunteer their services.

Another letter was read from headquarters asking the assistance of the local branch in securing recruits for the Army Medical Corps.

The question of providing meals and refreshments for the public at the celebration here on Labor Day was brought up and those present were of the opinion that the event would furnish an opportunity for the Red Cross society to make some money and at the same time be of assistance in accommodating the crowd. As the undertaking is a big one and will require the co-operation and assistance of every one in town, the executive did not feel like assuming the responsibility without first calling a public meeting. It was therefore decided to have this meeting in the society's rooms on Saturday next, Aug. 11th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. As this is an important matter it is hoped that all who possibly can will attend.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Box Springs U. F. A. for the handsome donation, the collection from their annual picnic.

The treasurer then submitted the following statement:

Have you Clothing For Belgiam Children?

Those interested in sending clothing to the Belgium children are now preparing for their second shipment. At present they have considerable goods on hand but there is still room for more in the box. We are asked to remind those who might have some second hand clothing suitable for children to bring same to the Red Cross rooms on Tuesday afternoon next. It is important that this matter should be attended to at that time as the box will be shipped the following day.

Beautiful Display Of Auroa Borealis

The heavens were illuminated last night with the most beautiful display of the aurora borealis it has ever been our experience to witness. About 9.30 the northwestern sky appeared to merror an immense fire and the apparent reflection cast a rich red hue over the heavens. This changed into the old fashioned northern lights with shooting rays from west to east. For a time the sky appeared to have cleared, but it was at 11.30 that the display reached its prettiest. At that time the whole sky was enveloped in a sea of loveliness which beggars description. From every corner of the horizon it was covered with a curtain that would make Joseph's coat fade into insignificence. These flimsy curtain-like rays appeared to be gathered up in the centre immediately over head and held by a large rosette of flaming red. From the centre the red faded into a soft cerise which, mingled with all the colors of the rainbow, created a setting which stood out as if defying the most skilled artist to paint anything half so beautiful.

The effect was wondefful and those who did not see it missed a rare sight.

Canadians Gain On Western Front

A recent report from Canadian headquarters in France says: "For the best of two weeks in Cite Du Moulin our patrols and those of the enemy have been living an uneasy life, almost side by side, with only a few tumble down walls between them. Saturday afternoon last small attacking parties went out from that part of Cite Du Moulin already in our hands and drove in the enemy's patrols a front of over a thousand yards. The Germans, for the most part, scuttled back toward Lens, but a number were caught under our fire and killed. A new outpost line was established, and prepared for a counter attack.

This advantage carried the Canadians well within a thousand yards of the centre of Lens, on the western front of the city. At Avoin and Leuvette, on the south front, our outposts are now about a mile from the centre, and in the northwest sector opposite St. Laurent, our line is a scant 1,500 yards from the heart of Lens. The net is fast closing.

POULTRY KEEPING FOR EVERYBODY.

"Unlike most industries, poultry keeping, if it is to take its original place among our Dominion industries, must depend upon the well directed efforts of the small producer rather than upon the large operations of the poultry farm." Thus speaks the director of the Dominion Experimental Farms in his introductory letter to a bulletin by the Dominion Poultry Husbandman. Mr. Biford goes over every phase of his subject, with a large number of especially interesting and appropriate illustrations, after pointing out the advantages derived and offered by poultry keeping, the best method of housing and of feeding is described, shows that poultry farming can be made profitable, pleasaurable, and health producing. With particular reference to the adaptability of women and girls, it mentions two or three classes of people who might well turn their attention to poultry keeping as a side line. Hints and suggestions on the best breeds to have and how to selects birds with good constitutions are given. Pigeons as well as all kinds of fowl demand attention. In short, the publication is a complete and valuable hand book on poultry raising and keeping. Everybody interested can get a copy free by addressing the publications branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ASK GOVERNMENT TO RAISE PATRIOTIC FUND.

That the Dominion government take the responsibility of raising and administering the patriotic fund was the resolution passed unanimously by the South Alberta branch of the patriotic fund at their annual meeting, held last Thursday. The present method, it was decided, should be replaced by a fund raised by taxation.

It is estimated that the proceeds of the southern Alberta wool clip this year will total $650,000, which will be the largest amount ever received from a wool clip in this district. About two-fifths of the total clip has already been sold to a Boston firm.

GLADYS HULETTE AT THE AMUSE-U

Saturday in "Her New York"—Five Act Gold Rooster Play—The Story of a Little Country Girl.

"Her New York," the five act Pathe Gold Roster photoplay, produced by Thanhouser, with Gladys Hulette as the star, has much of the ingenuousness and most of the charm of a fairy tale. It is the story of a little country girl hwo runs away to the city, falls into the trap of a female white slaver, is saved through the instrumentality of a pet hen, and is married to a young chap who boldly proclaims that he is going to support her by writing poetry, and makes good.

In this feature Gladys Hulette is seen to the best advantage of her long screen career. She injects into the role of the country girl a spirit of naturalness and a personality which will be liked immensely and which make "Her New York" five reels of solid enjoyment.

In addition to this feature the regular Rolins comedy will be shown.

Machinery Added to R. R. Stoner Plant

During the past week additional machinery has been added to the R. R. Stoner plant here. A large trip hammer is now installed and the men are busy putting in the necessary appartus for oxy-weld work. When this is completed this is completed this plant will be in a position to do all kinds of work in this line. In the past it has been necessary to send all this class of work out of town and as the other industries have considerable of it to do it is expected the machinery will be kept busy from the start.

Mr. Stoner has just returned from an eight hundred mile trip by auto through the southern part of the province. He had with him a sample of the grain tank being manufactured at this plant and exhibited it to the dealers in the different towns visited. He informs us that he took orders in every town and he expects a busy season in this line.

Later on it is his intention to commense manufacturing babsleighs and harrows and he has the assurance of western dealers he will have no trouble disposing of his total output.

The foundry in connection with this plant had its first cast last Saturday when over one thousand pieces of different kinds were cast.

Should Practice For Lador Day Sports

If the local footballers expect to get a look in at the tournament here on Labor Day they had better get busy and do a little practicing. We are informed the boys in the surrounding towns have been hard at it for the past two weeks. Those interested in the baseball game arranged for that day should also get busy if they want to make any kind of a showing.

The ranks of the new national army were opened formally to friendly aliens as volunteers. A ruling by Provost Marshal General Crowder communicated to the local selection boards directs that all such aliens who waive their right of exemption on nationality be promptly accepted for service.

Trying to Secure Help For Harvest

One hundred and seventy-five thousand letters are now being mailed from the offices of the National Service board to men who indicated on their national service cards their willingness to make a change of occupation if the public interest and exigencies of war rendered it advisable. The object of this appeal is to provide farm labor for the forthcoming harvest.

In the letter it is pointed out that while this call for national service may involve a sacrifice, men are invited to consider the fact that thousands of Canadians are today submitting to untold discomforts, risking their health and yielding their lives in the great struggle in France and Flanders for a remuneration of $1.10 per day. It is not given to everyone to be able to serve at the front. Those who cannot do so, however, may find some consolation in helping the cause, at home, realizing that any sacrifice thus involved could never measure up to those daily made by the men in the firing line.

Peace Decoys do Not Fool Wilson

President Wilson had a long conference last Sunday with Senator Lewis, the Democratic whip.

Asked whether he had discussed peace and international relations, Senator Lewis said:

"On that subject, I do not quote the President, but I do say for myself that when the signs of peace, based on the principle for which America went into this war, shall appear, the President will be the first to treat with them, but when they shall come disguised as peace-only to serve the further cruelties of war and the betrayal of America—Woodrow Wilson will be the last to be caught.

"The country will hear from the President on peace or war just as soon as truth or any new actual conditions call for him to take congress and the people into his confidence."

BIRTH.

McALLUM—In Redcliff, on Thursday, July 26th, 1917, to Mr. and Mrs. John W. McAllum, a son.

Farwell Social For Mrs. Parker

A very pleasant afternoon was spent in the Presbyterian church last Thursday, when the members of the Ladies' Aid and their friends gathered to give a farewell to Mrs. A. M. Parker, who left for the east on Saturday. Tea was served from four to five, after which Mrs. Gordon gave a short address on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, thanking Mrs. Parker for her faithful labor in that society and in other branches of the church and expressing the sorrow which all share at losing her. Mrs. Fairbairn then presented Mrs. Parker with a pearl sunburst as a small token of the regard which every member of the Ladies' Aid felt for her.

Mrs. Parker's Sunday school class then appeared, and in their behalf, she was addressed by Leona Ardinger, and presented with a handsome book by Odell Gibson.

Mrs. Parker thanked both the Ladies Aid and her class of girls for their good wishes and gift, and after some pictures were taken of the group, the party broke up, each person departing with a sense of sorrow and less at having to bid farewell to so helpful a member and dear friend as Mrs. Parker has proven herself while in their midst.

Political Crisis In Newfoundland

A political crisis developed in the Newfoundland legislature last Monday, when the upper house rejected the bill for the taxation of business profit for war revenue.

It is said the govehnment will prorogue the legislature and consider further action. This may take the form of an attempt to force the bill through a special session, or there may be an appeal through a general election.

Mrs. R. W. Waters received word this week from her son Willie, who has been on active service for the past two years. He is still site well and is now helping to guard prisoners. His father is still in England and his uncle Jimmy has been wounded and is now in a hospital in England.

RUSSIA WILL YET CONFOUND HER ENEMIES

Elihu Root Returns Safely — Is Much Impressed With Ability of Young Russian Leaders Now in Charge

Elihu Root and party have returned to the United States from Russia. Speaking of conditions in Russia, Speaking of conditions in Russia Mr. Root said: "Russia will eventually confound her enemies. She is now engaged in a life and death struggle with foes at home and abroad.

"Two things greatly impressed me in the men who are guiding the destines of Russia. One is the high, intense idealism of her leaders, and their great youth. M. Kerensky is only 32 and the oldest, M. Terestchonko, I believe, is 38. The confidence of the people in Kerensky is most beautiful and pathetic. He is listened to with reverence and his every wish is carried out to the fullest extent.

"We should not grow pessimistic in regard to Russia's disorders. We have our own eruptions here. Suppose all news of the infractions of law was sent over to Russia as Russian news was sent here. Would they not despair of American democracy?

"The Russian leaders are well united in the determination that their country, once saved from the serpent of autocracy, shall never again be caught in its coils.

"There was absolutely no truth in the report that because of a strike on the Siberian railroad we were deprived of food for days. There was not a single unpleasant incident in our trip."

A dispatch to the London Times from Rotterdam says a German seaplane alighted at Texel, Holland, after being fired at by Dutch soldiers. It was short of gasoline. The occupants were interned.

POTATO BUGS.

Those who have been trying to do their bit in connection with food production have had their troubles with drouth, cattle, cats, coyotes, weasles and potato bugs. Probably the worst of all these troubles and pests is the latter, the potato "bug." Unfortunately this is not the common, ordinary garden variety of potato bug, else the ordinary paris green might solve the problem. This bug has two legs, a white liver and a wide yellow streak right through its system. It does not make its appearance in daylight but sneaks around under cover of the darkness and in genuine parasite fashion gets its living off the labor of others. These bugs have a well developed sense of instinct as they are able to detect the healthiest hills of potatoes, but unlike the ordinary, decent potato bug, they do not eat the potatoes on the ground. They bring a pail, basket or bag along with them and take their steal away to their den. These bugs are very ambitious. Sometimes they dress themselves up in clothes and try to pass themselves off as men but the wide yellow streak makes the detection easy. Another way of detecting them is by finding new potato pealings around the back door of these dens where no potatoes are grown.

We understand some of the dens have been spotted and that if the practice is continued it will only be a matter of time till the town will rid itself of these pests.

TELEPHONE CENTRAL.

In this issue of the Review the provincial department of telephones is calling for tenders for the erection of a new telephone exchange in Redcliff.

As the building used at present for this purpose is most inconveniently situated, being a considerable distance away from the business section of the town, the Review is of the opinion that the department should consider the advisability of securing a sight down town before erecting the new building.

As there are a few lots on our main street to be put up for auction at the tax sale this month we have no doubt that a more suitable site could be very reasonably secured.

Apart from the question of convenience there are other reasons why this building should be in the business section of the town, and one is that such a building would help fill up the section and, as a result, add to the appearance of the street.

GOOD ADVICE.

David Lloyd George sums up the situation very nicely in a speech recently made in the imperial house. Although his remarks referred to conditions in the old land they apply very fittingly to Canada at the present time when he said: "There are some who are more concerned about the ending of the war than winning it, and plans which lead to victory, if they prolong it have their disapproval and the people responsible for such plans have their condemnation. Let us keep our eyes steadily on the winning of the war, and, may I say, let us keep both eyes open. Some have a cast in their eyes, and, whilst one eye is fixed surely on victory, the other is wandering around on other issues, or staring steadily on some pet partisan project of their own. Beware of becoming cross-eyed. Let both eyes be set on victory, looking neither to the right nor to the left. That is the way we will win."

BROTHER DAVIDSON'S OPPORTUNITY.

The Calgary Albertain says editorily:

"The excursions to the provincial demonstration farms at Claresholm and Olds on July 31st and August 1st, conducted by the provincial government are a very excellent way of educating not only the farmers of Alberta but the residents of the cities of the agricultural possibilities of the province."

Now that the editor of the Albertain is a member of the provincial legislature, and since he realized the benefit of such visits to the experimental farms, probably he will use his influence in having similar excursions to the government farm between here and the Hat. Up till the present time this experimental farm has been of absolutely no service whatever to the farmers of this district. Although it is in Redcliff constituency we venture to say that a large percentage of the farmers in the constituency have never heard of it.

Surely something could be done by our member to have a day set apart when farmers of the district could gather at this experimental farm, examine the crops and buildings and listen to addresses by government officials of the Department of Agriculture on questions of interest to the farmers.

A LESSON.

It is said that "experience is a good teacher" and, we presume, this refers to the farm as well as any other line of business. This being the case the experience of this year should teach farmers that there is but one way to farm, in this district especially, if they are to have any reasonable hope for success. That is by a systematic preparation of the soil from year to year. Crop conditions at the present time show conclusively the summer fallowing is the only system.

No doubt the ideal weather conditions of 1915 and 16 have had a tendancy to encouraging the haphazard habit of scratching grain into the ground any old way as long as it was covered over, but it must be remembered that grain sown in that way must have that ideal weather referred to above in dry or even ordinary weather it cannot possibly stand up against the sunny southern Alberta heat. With the summer fallow it is different, as a trip through thecountry just now will prove.

Experience, then, has shown that the time to prepare for the 1918 crop is in 1917.

At a meeting of the local council of women in Brandon, Man., a resolution was passed imploring the Liberal convention now in session at Winnipeg to do its utmost to prevent a general election during the war. Manitoba women appear to have grasped the seriousness of the situation more quickly than the men.

We have heard a number of complaints recently about the high rate of speed indulged in by some drivers between here and the Hat and even through the streets in town. If those responsible for these dare-devil stunts cannot see the danger of this practice the authorities should step in and put a stop to it. If not it is only going to be a matter of time till a coroner's jury will be called in to view the remains.

"We look to the resources of Canada, and to the indomitable energy of Canadians for an answer that will shatter Germany's threat of starvation," says Baron Rhonda, food controller of Great Britain in a message to Hon. W. J. Hanna, food controller of Canada.

There is now some talk of the food controller for Canada calling for two meatless days a week and allowing nothing but whole wheat flour to be used. We do not know how the food controller intends to enforce these laws but it seems to us it would simplify matters very materially to start right at the root and first prohibit the sale of meat for those two days and prohibit the manufacture of anything but whole wheat flour. White flour will be like whiskey. As long as it is made there will be some who will buy and use it even if it is against the law.

The death penalty has been demanded by federal officials against leaders of the anti-draft uprising which have thrown residents of central Oklahoma into turmoil for the last four days.

DIDN'T WANT PRESENTS

GIVE MONEY TO MONISTS SAID HAECKEL ON BIRTHDAY.

Celebrated Scientist and Expositor of the Evolutionary Theory, Who Attained the Age of Eighty Years a Few Weeks Ago, Has Passed Through Many Trials and Persecutions In Pursuit o. Science.

Prof. Ernst Haeckel, the celebrated German philosopher and naturalist, was eighty years old on Feb. 16. His friends and disciples in all ··rts of the world had planned to present him with some fitting proof of their regard, but Herr Haeckel sent out an appeal to his friends requesting them to refrain from sending him any personal donations. He further asked them to devote any money intended as a gift to him to a special fund which he plans to place at the disposal of the German M·ists' union, in order to make it international in scope.

Prof. Haeckel is the chief representative of radical naturalistic evolution in Germany and is a bold theorist. His best known works are "Natural History of Creation," "The Origin of the Human Race" and "The Riddle of the Universe."

Prof. Haeckel made his debut as a writer on scientific subjects in 1862, when he published his monographs on the "Radiolaria." This work, strongly influenced by Darwin's theory of evolution, created considerable interest in the scientific world and attracted the attention of scientists all over the world to the modest "Privatdozent," at Jena.

The nove..y and boldness of the theories advanced in that work surprised even the advanced thinkers in Germany and aroused a storm of indignation among the traditionalists.

PROF. ERNST HAECKEL.

Prof. Haeckel was bitterly attacked and denounced as an enemy of mankind who had degraded his species, and determined efforts ·ere made to have him dismissed from his professorship at the Jena University. But the late Grand Duke Karl Alexander of Saxe-Weimar, the protector of the young scientist, declined to interfere. When a prominent man begged the duke to prohibit the lectures of Haeckel, the duke asked his visitor whether he believed that the professor was really convinced of the truth of his statements.

"Certainly, I do," was the reply, "and what he says is all the worse for that very reason."

"But then," retorted the grand duke, "in that case he is doing nothing more than what you are doing yourself."

But Prof. Haeckel did not take all this quietly. He was a born fighter and never hesitated for a moment to enter into a polemic with his opponents. Undaunted by the storm of vituperation which his first impo·tant work had aroused, Haeckel, between 1866 and 1875, went on an extended tour of scientific exploration and investigation through Europe, Asia Minor, Syria and Egypt, from which he returned with a great mass of valuable material, which he used with telling effect in a series of epoch-making works.

Prof. Haeckel has always thoroughly enjoyed life, and his untamable, fighting spirit is still with him in his active old age. He has never quailed before opposition or hard names, but has remained a lusty, healthy, impetuous, intrepid youth, even when his hair had worn to snowy white. It is related that not many years ago, the Grand Duke of Weimar playfully rallied him, in the midst of a brilliant company, on h's belief in evolution. To the amazement and horror of the guests, he slapped the grand duke on the back and replied: "Well, my good man, when you have time, just come over to Jena, and see some proofs of it!" In his seventy-fifth year he severely censured Kaiser William, in a public lecture at Berlin, for laying down the law on a subject of which His Imperial knew little or nothing.

When Prof. Haeckel retired from his chair at Jena, he did so with the avowed intention of devoting the rest of his life to the compilation of a large work on the "History of Biology" and the development and extension of the "Phyletic Museum" which he equipped and presented to the University of Jena in 1908.

Countess' Dancing Class.

The Countess of Aberdeen has taken in hand the task of teaching poor Dublin children how to dance and play. Every day at Dublin Castle, in a building used as a riding-school, scores of little ones from schools in the congested districts are guests at the Castle. Here teachers instruct them in folk dances, Swedish drill, and a number of exercises. Personal interest is taken in the work of instruction by the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Aberdeen.

SCOTS HUMOR.

Some of the Pawky Sayings of the Land o' Cakes.

Prof. Herbert Strong tells a number of stories in The Academy in the course of an article on "Scottish Humor and Scottish Character."

A minister in a country parish was promoted from his unremunerative cure to the more desirable one of jail chaplain to a large town. His congregation resented his acceptance of the office, and referred to the trouble that it would give them to find a successor. But the divine stuck to his guns, and took as the text of his farewell sermon, "I go to prepare a place for you!"

The minister gracefully and fully accepts the high opinion of his powers accorded to him by the members of his flock. An Episcopalian Scottish professor told me that he questioned a distinguished parish minister as to the reasons why the Lord's Prayer was so seldom used in the service of his church. The reply was:

"Weel, ye see, we just dinna need it."

"But," pursued the professor, "surely it is impossible even for one so gifted as yourself to produce a prayer more sublime?"

"Aye," was the answer, "but oor folk thinks itherwise."

Another anecdote is taken from Geikie's "Scottish Reminiscences." A country doctor who was attending a laird had instructed the butler of the house in the art of taking and recording his master's temperature with a thermometer. On paying his usual morning call, he was met by the butler, to whom he said:

"Well, John, I hope the laird's temperature is not any higher today?"

The man looked puzzled for a minute, and then replied:

"Weel, I yas just wonderin' that mysel'. Ye see, he deed at twal o'clock!"

A minister well advanced in years summoned his elders, and apologetically announced to them his intention of taking to himself a third wife.

"She will come in handy to close my een," he added.

"Fegs, minister," replied one of his counsellors, "I have had twa o' them mysel', and I can promise ye they have opened mine!"

Unknown Millionaires.

The sale of the Duke of Bedford's Covent Garden property in London to Mr. Mallaby-Deeley, M.P., for a sum believed to be in the neighborhood of $15,000,000 has caused the London Daily Mirror to print an article in which it remarks that London has many unknown millionaires.

The metropolis, it is declared, is full of men who could put down millions of dollars at almost a moment's notice. Yet, beyond their own small circles, nothing is known of them. Not only the city but the suburbs also have many of these millionaires.

Until a comparatively short while ago, Mr. Mallaby-Deeley was almost unknown to the general public. Today he barely enters business circles, and he says that he is not a business man, yet his colossal deals are the talk of the hour. A little while ago, too, there was the case of Birch Crisp, the almost unknown man who was responsible for the $50,000,000 loan to China. Up to that time the public had never heard of him. Then, suddenly, it knew him as the financial giant who was fighting against the world.

The public was staggered, too, when Charles Morrison of Coleman street, London, died and left over $55,000,000. Mr. Morrison was in no sense a public figure, and he had gone on quietly amassing his huge fortune without any one knowing very much about him.

In The Guards.

The guardsmen have many privileges. Guards' officers, though usually rich men, are better paid than line officers. For instance, the ordinary pay of a Guards' lieutenant is the same as that of an infantry subaltern, but in addition he draws "Guards' pay" at the rate of $350 a year.

In regard to the rank and file, a guardsman private gets a penny a day more than the infantry Tommy, where the pay of other grades is also higher.

In the Guards' "Magna Charta," as contained in the King's Regulations, it is laid down that:—

"Officers of the Foot Guards are not to be put on duty with other troops, nor are officers of other corps to be put on duty with, or to command, men of the Foot Guards."

"In performing the duties of a garrison or camp they will be kept distinct as much as possible; but, under the immediate command of their own officers, they will perform whatever duties may be required of them."

Sawdust Sugar.

In the course of a paper read before the Royal Society of Arts, in London, Dr. Zimmerman described a process by which sugar might be manufactured from sawdust.

In its natural state, he pointed out, wood contains no sugar, but when sawdust has been subjected in closed retorts to digestion with a weak sulphurous acid solution under pressure of six to seven atmospheres, a very remarkable transmutation takes place, as much as twenty-five per cent. of the material being converted into sugar. In this Dr. Zimmerman claims that we have a valuable feeding stuff for horses, cattle, and sheep.

Sir Robert Peel and a friend were once going through a picture gallery where there was a portrait of a well known man who was famous for saying sharp things.

"How wonderfully like!" said the friend. "You can see the quiver on his lips."

"Yes," replied Sir Robert, "and the arrows coming out of it."

PLACE FAVORS.

Inexpensive and Easily Made Table Decorations.

Hostesses are always on the lookout for original place favors. The latest idea in this line is in the edible table decoration.

Oranges selected carefully for their perfect appearance can be formed into baskets by cutting one in half, with the exception of a narrow strip at the top which is used as a handle. All the inside of the orange is, of course, removed. The baskets thus formed are then crystallized in the following manner:

Put them in cold water to soak for about two hours, drain carefully and replace in fresh water and boil for one hour. Drain again and boil for another half hour. After pouring off this water add one cupful of granulated sugar and boil, stirring constantly until it candies—about five minutes. Place the baskets on plates and shower them with sugar. Put away to harden thoroughly. Small candies that harmonize with the deep yellow of the orange are used as filling.

Crystallized grapefruit is a delicious homemade confection. After removing all the pulp cut the skins into narrow strips and put them into enough water to cover them, leaving them to soak over night. In the morning drain off the water. Cover again with cold water and put over the fire to boil for an hour. Drain once more and place in boiling water, allowing the skins to cook for fully another hour. Pour off this water and add a cupful of sugar and stir constantly until it candies. Turn out and roll each piece in granulated sugar and place on a platter to dry.

Cut bright red apples in half. Carefully scoop out the meat, but leave enough to form a white lining for the shining skin. Make a thick sirup of sugar, and when slightly cooled immerse the half apples and set them aside to harden. Place them on small paper doilies after filling them with selected nut meats.

A Colonial Supper a Nice Way of Entertaining.

There are all sorts of clever ideas that can be worked out for a Washington's birthday entertainment, whether for children, young people or their elders.

For the latter a real colonial supper, served as far as possible with colonial dishes and silver and with the participants attired in colonial dress, seems to be the most appreciated.

For the youngsters plenty of cherries, cocked hats, hatchets and cannon ball arrangements provide the patriotic setting required. If they are allowed to "dress up" with cocked hats, knee breeches, shoes with buckles, powdered hair, wigs and patches their joy will know no bounds.

An old folks' concert makes a delightful way of celebrating the day.

THE CHERRY TREE BOX!

At a woman's club social last year a dwarf cherry tree was hung full of realistic cherries made from red paper. When opened these were found to contain limericks on each of the guests. As each limerick was read the one to whom it referred took her place in the line until all were out. Then, while standing, the company joined in singing old time melodies.

Boxes that look like the stumps of real cherry trees are cut out of wood or made of papier mache. These are shown in the shops as favors for the Washington's birthday entertainment. Filled with bonbons or inclosing a small gift, they make nice souvenirs for the bridge or dinner party or for the afternoon tea. One of the boxes is illustrated here. A bow of tricolored ribbon encircles it, and a miniature hatchet and artificial cherries give the touch of timeliness.

New Bottle Stopper.

There is a new bottle stopper which is ideal. It could not be described as an automatic cork, and yet it almost amounts to this. There is a cork, or, rather stopper, arrangement of nickel that has a rubber socket cap. This claps down over the mouth of the bottle from which the original cork has been removed. The stopper fits firmly, for the reason its supporting mechanism is fitted to the neck of the bottle by means of an easily adjusted collar that will fit any size bottle. By pressing a lever at the side the stopper is instantly released.

Care of Teapots.

A musty odor sometimes develops in a rarely used silver teapot that is considered too precious—from associations—for daily use. When put away to be brought out for state occasions only see that it is carefully cleaned and dried; then drop into it a lump of sugar, and there will be no more mustiness if the sugar is renewed at long intervals.

CANINE COLLECTORS.

Charity Dogs In London Are a Highly Trained Class.

Many of the general public, as well as the employes of the London and South-Western Railway, will sincerely mourn the recent death of Wimbledon Nell, the retriever which collected money for the Railway Servants' Orphanage. With a box attached to her back, Wimbledon Nell walked the platforms of Wimbledon Station for seven years, and during that time collected £775 in the cause of charity. A special steel collar was worn by Nell, the gift of the orphanage authorities, who also presented her with a silver medal for every £100 raised. These medals were worn by the dog, attached to her collar.

Nell was one of a dozen collecting dogs to be found at various stations on the London and South-Western Railway. The animals collect on an average about £500 a year, or about a quarter of the amount required to pay the annual expenses of the total number of orphans. It was in 1894 that an employe hit upon the idea of training a dog as a collector for charity. The animal was a cross between a retriever and a Newfoundland, and was known as Jack I. He was the first of the three Jacks of Waterloo Station, who, between them, collected over £3,000. After their death the bodies of Jack I. and Jack II. were stuffed and enshrined in glass-cases, which have long occupied prominent positions at Waterloo Station.

No less famous than the Jacks of Waterloo is Tim, the Airedale terrier, at Paddington, who has collected over £1,000 for a widows' and and orphans' fund. The total sum collected by the dogs on the Great Western Railway—between £200 and £300 per annum—provides enough to meet the assistance given by the institution to twenty-five widows out of the 1,500 who are dependent on the fund.

There are dozens of collecting dogs on the various lines throughout the provinces, most of them being the gift of railway servants themselves, who train and look after the animals. Many interesting stories are told of their extraordinary intelligence. Southampton Jack used to be quite famous for his ability to collect from the passengers of both the up and down trains that stopped at Southampton West Station within a minute of each other. In order to work both trains before they departed, Southampton Jack, with almost human intelligence, would wait on the platform at which the earlier train was due, and after romping and barking through the passengers for pennies, would fairly fly over the bridge and give the passengers of the other train a similar opportunity to contribute before their train left.

Mention should also be made of another Jack, a retriever belonging to Fireman Hayward, of Tunbridge Wells, who, some time ago, added to his record of services in aid of charity by collecting £10 for the families of miners whose lives were lost in a terrible disaster. During six years this animal traveled 13,000 miles, collected £518, and won thirteen medals.

Swans' Inherited Trick.

A visitor to the cathedral city of Wells, in Somersetshire, England, tells of a curious incident he witnessed there among the swans in the Episcopal palace.

One afternoon about five o'clock, whilst watching the movements of the various birds in the water, the correspondent heard the ringing of a bell, and on looking to see whence the sound came, he observed that one of the swans was vigorously pulling the cord, evidently to attract attention.

As no immediate notice was taken of its efforts the impatient bird continued to ring the bell violently until there appeared at the window of the tower the wife of the gatekeeper, who threw out a quantity of food to the expectant waterfowl.

On making inquiries as to the origin of this interesting episode, the correspondent was told that a number of years ago a daughter of the Bishop of Wells, being much interested in the birds inhabiting the moat, taught the swans to ring the bell at feeding-time, at five o'clock in the afternoon. This practice has been continued by successive families of swans down to the present day, and it would seem, therefore, as if the birds transmitted to their offspring the knowledge that when the cord was pulled the bell would ring and that food would follow.

Ready to Oblige.

Sir Horace Avory is regarded as one of the ablest judges in England. He does not figure in the limelight to the same extent as some of his brother judges, for he refuses to ape the knock-about comedian.

When at the bar he was a noted cross-examiner. On one occasion he was cross-examining a witness on the various counts of a plea of justification.

"Yes," said the witness, who had a fearful record and was unable to withstand the merciless cross-examination, "but you'll be accusing me of murder next."

Sir Horace Avory calmly looked over the pages of his brief and blandly inquired: "Which one do you mean?"

Methodical Judges.

The Supreme Court at Singapore has made an order in favor of a girl named Koh Choo Neo, who sought to prove that she was the legitimate daughter of a man named Low Kim Pong, who had died, and that she was therefore entitled to a share of his estate. Two Chinese arbiters, says The Penang Gazette, had reported that the girl had "fifty to sixty per cent. of her mother's chin, while her forehead, two cheeks, and face resembled the father, and they were perfectly satisfied her claim was just.

INSURANCE BLACK LISTS.

Names of Swindlers Who Have Robbed Companies Are Kept on File.

No less interesting than the "Rogues' Gallery" at Scotland Yard, that wonderful register of criminals which enables the police to turn up the record of any "habitual" who may pass through their hands, is the "black list" kept by insurance companies of people who make a living by instituting bogus claims. These lists are kept up to date, and contain photographs as well as full particulars of individuals who endeavor to fleece insurance companies.

One family obtained hundreds of pounds from shopkeepers and others for injuries alleged to have been sustained by falling over cellar-flaps and other imaginary accidents. The man who specialized in falling from the steps of motor-buses, and the other who always slipped on a piece of fat outside butchers' shops, are among the people who made a good thing out of bogus claims till they were found out.

In an interesting article on the curiosities of insurance, published by the London Daily Chronicle, it is also pointed out that most of the claims coming in just now are caused by jewellery thieves, who break into flats and small houses that are left unoccupied for an hour or two. Many such residences have doors with glass panels and spring locks—a favorite combination for the burglar and housebreaker, since he has only to break the glass and pull back the lock. He first knocks at the door. If, after two or three knocks, no one answers, he assumes that no one is in, and makes an entrance. If someone comes to the door he asks for a person who does not live there.

There seems to be nothing which one cannot be insured against nowadays, judging by some of the curious claims which have been paid. For instance, a man burnt his foot on a hot-water bottle while lying in bed. He was awarded £30. A butcher pushed out of his cart by the pigs he was taking to market received £60 for his injuries; and another man who scratched his eye with his finger-nail while washing, and destroyed his sight, was paid £150 as compensation.

Among other curious claims paid might be mentioned the case of a lady who swallowed a splinter of glass while eating an ice at a restaurant, and another a lady who swallowed a needle in a piece of pastry at an hotel.

Capitalship Costs.

One of the results of the advent of the Government to Delhi is to throw a very heavy burden on the municipal exchequer of that none too flourishing city. The Delhi municipality is faced with a deficit of a lakh and a quarter for the current year and a further deficit of the same amount for 1914-15. It is not likely that the elevation of Delhi to the dignity of an imperial capital will increase the rateable value of the old city—an increase which can only come from increased trade and population. The need of making Delhi decently habitable will involve, therefore, a heavy burden on the ratepayers unless the Government shoulders the liability. There is a good deal of justice in the contention that the Government ought to help the municipality liberally to meet the obligations which the transfer of the capital has caused. As a matter of fact, the cost of making old Delhi clean and sanitary ought to form part of the estimates of the cost of the new capital. Government has already tried to shoulder the cost of various improvements necessitated by the transfer on to other accounts, but to make the poverty-stricken municipality of Delhi responsible for making its new abode respectably clean strikes us as particularly mean.

Welcomed the Troops.

The Eastern Bengal manoeuvres, which it was feared in some quarters would excite the animosity of the people, have had quite a contrary effect. The regiments marching to Dacca have been everywhere welcome·', even small villages putting up arches, while the colonels of the regiments have been garlanded and presented with addresses. Oranges, cigarettes, and other gifts are being thrust into the hands of the troops. The Highlanders of all ranks are being pressed to visit the schools and similar institutions, and are being asked to make speeches. An officer writing from Dacca says: "The heartiness of the reception accorded to the troops is almost uncanny, and is so different from what was expected, and from the usual apathy of the Indians, that the effect on British and Indian soldiers alike is bewildering."

Course In Farm Law.

A recommendation that it is anticipated will be speedily put into effect was made by an agricultural inspector for one of the Boards of Education in New Zealand recently. This advises that a short course in farm law should be taken up in the last year of an agricultural secondary pupil's course. The question has since been discussed by farmers, all of whom are of opinio that the suggestion is well worth following up, so that young New Zealand agriculturists will leave college equipped with all that is to be known on such questions as mortgages (which are continually being negotiated in farm life), bankruptcy, law regarding the dipping of sheep, driving, etc.

A Mile of Pennies.

The Wesleyans of Brighouse have set themselves to collect "a mile of pennies" for a Sunday-school fund. The collecting cars are a foot long, and are divided into one inch spaces fitted with tiny envelopes to receive penny contributions. Many yards of pennies have already been collected, although the scheme has only just been launched.

WHAT'S YOUR NUMBER?

PERHAPS YOU AREN'T EVEN LISTED IN PRECEDENCE TABLE.

Medo-Persian Rule Which Governs Presentation at Levees and Seating at Table In Really High Circles Lists Sir Wilfrid Laurier as No. 18,113 While Mr. Borden '· 18,337.

It was noticed that at Their Royal Highnesses' draw'ng-room at Ottawa the other day, Lord and Lady Decies, who were present, made their respective bows to T. R. H. before any of the rest of the company—even before th Prime Minister of the Dominion. In the United Kingdom all such matters are carefully settled, and nothing is left to chance. In fact, each person who bears a title, or occupies a position entitling him to any precedence at all, has a number showing his exact position in the scale of relative precedence. This number is to be found against his name in the Guide to Relative Precedence which forms part of Burke's Peerage, Baronetage, and Knightage, the monumental work which social aspirants in the Old Country are said to value only less highly than the Bible and Shakespeare, and to read with more avidity than either.

According to that work, Lord Decies' number is 13,126, while Mr. Borden's number is 18,337—a good way lower down. As a matter of fact, however, the numbers prefixed to the various names, though indicating the relative position of those entitled to precedence, do not show the actual numerical position of each. Thus Lord Decies' number of 13,126 does not mean that there are 13,126 persons of higher rank than his. Nor does Mr. Borden's number of 18,337 signify that the·e are 18,336 persons of higher rank than his. What is signified is that they belong respectively to classes thirteen and eighteen—Lord Decies, as a baron, to class thirteen, and Mr. Borden, as a Privy Councillor, to class eighteen—in the s·le of precedence, called, for convenience, 13,000 and 18,000 respectively, and that the honors f·n which they derive precedence are respectively 126th and 337th in order of seniority in their own degrees. The numbers prefixed to each name, in fact, combine two series.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's number is 18,113—224 higher up than that of the Prime Minister. For, though both are in the eighteenth class, as Privy Councillors — this class comprises Knights of the Garter, Knights of St. Patrick, and Privy Councillors — Sir Wilfrid Laurier's number is above Mr. Borden's for the reason that the former was created a Privy Councillor in 1897, and the latter not until 1912. And the Prime Minister of Canada does not, as such, figure in this scale of precedence at all. In fact, it is as members of "The Most Honorable Privy Council of Great Britain" that he and the leader of the Opposition find their places in the scale. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is true, as a G.C.M.G., or Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George, is entitled to a place in the scale of precedence, but to one very much lower down than that which his Privy Councillorship affords him — one, in fact, with the number 27,060, instead of 18,113.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the only Canadian G.C.M.G. But there are quite a few K.C.M.G.'s, or Knight Commanders of St. Michael and St. George, whose order of knighthood entitles them to a place in the thirtieth class of the scale of precedence. Thus Sir Frederick Borden is number 30,294, Sir William Mulock is number 30,295, Sir Alan Aylesworth is number 30,416, Sir Joseph Pope is number 30,444, Sir J. M. Gibson is number 30,443, Sir Rodmond Roblin is number 30,450, Sir Richard McBride is number 30,451, and so on. Canadian knights bachelors are almost like the sands of the seashore for multitude.

Among other numbers are the following: Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, 33,572; Sir Henry Pellatt, 33,859; Sir William Mortimer Clark, 34,004; Sir Edmund Osler, 34,414; Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, 34,065; Sir Edmund Walker, 34,226; Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones, 34,311; Sir William Mackenzie, 34,268; and Sir Donald Mann two numbers below his brother railway magnate. It is a curious anomaly that, in the table of social precedence for ladies, who in general take the same rank as their husbands, there is no place for the wives of Privy Councillors. Thus Mrs. Borden's name does not appear in it at all. And though Lady Laurier's has place there, it is as the wife of a G.C.M.G., and not as a Privy Councillor. On the other hand, there are places for the wives of knights, and not only for their wives, but for their sons and daughters as well, and even for their son's wife, the wife · a younger son of a knight ranking in the sixty-seventh class, or among the sixty-seven thousands, which is some way down.

This curious anomaly that has been mentioned, with regard to the wives of Privy Councillors, is not wholly confined to them. The Archbishop of Canterbury ranks, by a statute of Edward I.'s reign, next to the royal family. But though Anglican bishops for hundreds of years have been allowed to marry the archbishop's wife is merely known as Mrs. Davidson, while her husband is "His Grace," and is not mentioned in the table of precedence.

Probably the person second highest in the social scale, according to Burke, in Canada to-day is Lord Edward Seymour, who, as the younger son of a marquis, is in the eleventh class, his number being 11,010.

Lord Hyde is in the tenth class; Lord Somers in the thirteenth; Lady Macdonald of Earnscliffe is in the fifth; Lord Strathcona's number was 13,307; and Lord Mount Stephen's 13,264.
